2024 · WHAT ISSUES SHOULD I CONSIDER FOR MY CHILD WITH SPECIAL NEEDS?

CASH FLOW ISSUES	YES	NO	SUPPLEMENTAL SUPPORT
<ul> <li>Do you need to determine whether your child is eligible for Supplemental Security Income (SSI) benefits? If so, consider the following:</li> <li>If your child is under age 18, they may be eligible for SSI benefits if your income and resources are below the applicable limits.</li> <li>If your child is age 18 or older, they may be eligible for SSI benefits if their income and resources are below the applicable limits.</li> </ul>			Does your child receive (or expect to If so, consider the strategies below to p supplemental support, without disquali  Do you need to determine whether y ABLE account (aka 529A)? If so, note the must have preceded their 26th birthday receiving SSI or SSDI or (2.) meet the dis
<ul> <li>Do you need to determine whether your child is eligible for Social Security Disability Insurance (SSDI) benefits? If so, consider the following:</li> <li>First, your child must meet Social Security's definition of "disabled" (note the unique factors that apply if your child is blind).</li> <li>If your child's disability began before age 22, and you are receiving Social Security benefits due to retirement or disability, your child may be eligible for SSDI on your earnings record.</li> <li>Your child may be eligible for SSDI on their own earnings record if they pass the relevant work tests. See the "Do I Qualify For Social Security Disability Benefits?" flowchart.</li> </ul>			file a proper certification of disability.  Do you need to determine how an AE your child? If so, consider the following Similar to 529 accounts, ABLE account vehicles, but with an expanded definition related to a beneficiary's disability (e.g. housing, transportation, job training, expenses, etc.).  In general, an ABLE account's contributions are disregarded for mea (e.g., Medicaid). However, for SSI purp
<ul> <li>Do you need to determine whether your child is eligible for Medicaid? If so, consider the following:</li> <li>If your child is receiving SSI, they may be eligible automatically.</li> <li>There may be other Medicaid coverage pathways allowed by your state (e.g., based on your income and assets, on your child's own merits, etc.).</li> <li>A "spend-down" strategy may be necessary to qualify.</li> <li>Review your state's Medicaid payback and estate recovery rules.</li> </ul>			costs aren't disregarded, and any bala counted as a resource, risking a susper Different state programs offer differe features (e.g., a debit card), and inves  Do you need to weigh the potential liaccount? If so, consider the following:  Total annual contributions can't exceed amount, if your child has earned inco
Do you need to research additional benefits or programs offered by your state? If so, review your state's CHIP eligibility standards and other support that your state may offer for your child.			plans impose a maximum balance cap  Contributions aren't federal income to a deduction or a credit) and non-qual
If your child is not eligible for public benefits, do you need to update your financial plan in order to provide support?  If so, consider the following:  Review your cash flow and savings strategies.  Consider insurance strategies to protect and fund your goals (e.g., disability and life).			income tax on earnings (determined processes a account funds might be subject to Me recovery, etc. after the death of your of following:
Are there other private sources of financial support for your child (e.g., grandparents)? If so, ensure that any transfers to your child are structured and managed to optimize their financial position.			<ul> <li>You/your child can establish a first-pa trust (SNT) for their benefit, and your the trust. (continue on next page)</li> </ul>

SUPPLEMENTAL SUPPORT	YES	NO
Does your child receive (or expect to receive) public benefits?  If so, consider the strategies below to provide your child with supplemental support, without disqualifying them from such benefits.
Do you need to determine whether your child is eligible for an ABLE account (aka 529A)? If so, note that the onset of their disability must have preceded their 26th birthday, and they must either (1.) be receiving SSI or SSDI or (2.) meet the disability criteria and obtain and file a proper certification of disability.
<ul> <li>Do you need to determine how an ABLE account could benefit your child? If so, consider the following:</li> <li>■ Similar to 529 accounts, ABLE accounts are tax-advantaged savings vehicles, but with an expanded definition of qualified expenses related to a beneficiary's disability (e.g., health care, education, housing, transportation, job training, legal fees, basic living expenses, etc.).</li> <li>■ In general, an ABLE account's contributions, earnings, and qualified distributions are disregarded for means-tested program eligibility (e.g., Medicaid). However, for SSI purposes, distributions for housing costs aren't disregarded, and any balance in excess of $100,000 is counted as a resource, risking a suspension of SSI eligibility.</li> <li>■ Different state programs offer different tax benefits, account features (e.g., a debit card), and investment options.</li> </ul>
<ul> <li>Do you need to weigh the potential limitations of an ABLE account? If so, consider the following:</li> <li>Total annual contributions can't exceed $18,000 (plus an additional amount, if your child has earned income, subject to restrictions), and plans impose a maximum balance cap (varies state by state).</li> <li>Contributions aren't federal income tax-deductible (states may allow a deduction or a credit) and non-qualified withdrawals are subject to income tax on earnings (determined pro rata), plus a 10% penalty.</li> <li>Depending upon the circumstances and applicable state laws, ABLE account funds might be subject to Medicaid payback, estate recovery, etc. after the death of your child.</li> </ul>
<ul> <li>Does your child have assets of their own? If so, consider the following:</li> <li>You/your child can establish a first-party (self-settled) special needs trust (SNT) for their benefit, and your child can convey their assets to the trust. (continue on next page)</li> </ul>

2024 · WHAT ISSUES SHOULD I CONSIDER FOR MY CHILD WITH SPECIAL NEEDS?

SUPPLEMENTAL SUPPOR	RT (CONTINUED)	YES	NO
without disqualifying the may be advisable, to ens  A first-party SNT must co	NT can supplement your child's needs em from public benefits. A corporate trustee sure compliance with the complex rules. ontain a payback provision, making the trust as for reimbursement by Medicaid after your death? If so, consider the You can create a third-p Drafted properly, this SN without disqualifying the direct the disposition of Lifetime transfers that dexclusion are subject to	ets to your child, either now or at your following: arty SNT, funded with your assets. NT can supplement your child's needs em from public benefits. The trust can also assets remaining after your child's death. o not qualify for the annual gift tax gift tax. After transfers to the SNT are e owned by the trust and taxed accordingly.
administer an SNT? If so, ■ It is important that the t capable investor, can movith the rules of any app	that the right trustee is appointed to consider the following: rustee understands your child's needs, is a aintain accurate records, and will comply blicable public benefits programs. and a professional) can be beneficial.
administration? If so, cor	onal oversight and ease of a sider whether a pooled trust, administered on, might suit your child's needs.
TAX ISSUES		YES	NO
Did you or your child wit	hdraw funds from their ABLE account?
Do you have an HSA and tax-advantaged accounts	/or FSA? If so, consider using these to fund medical expenses.
	with special needs? If so, you may be ax Credit, which is worth up to $16,810 ls your child under age 1 Tax Credit (subject to MAC	7? If so, you may be eligible for the Child GI phaseouts). See the "What Issues Should Dr Adopting) A Child?" flowchart.

TAX ISSUES (CONTINUED)	YE	S	NO
Do you have child care expenses that were required in order for you (and your spouse, if applicable) to work or search for work?  If your child is under age 13, you may be eligible for the Child and Dependent Care Tax Credit.
Was your child reimbursed for any medical expenses this year?  If so, the expense should not be deducted. If the expense was incurred in a prior year and was previously deducted, the reimbursement should be included in income (in whole or in part).
<ul> <li>Did your child incur medical expenses that were not reimbursed if so, consider the following:</li> <li>Expenses exceeding 7.5% of AGI can be deducted (including health care premiums, prescription drug costs, payments to health care providers, costs of therapy or treatment facilities, etc.).</li> <li>Special education can qualify as a deductible medical expense, as well as certain costs for medical conferences and seminars.</li> </ul>
Does your child have a job, and were expenses incurred in orde for them to do their work? If so, they may be able to take a busine deduction for "impairment-related work expenses" (not subject to the 7.5% AGI floor applied to medical expenses).	:SS	ם
MISCELLANEOUS ISSUES	YE	S	NO
> Do you need to create or update a Letter of Intent regarding yo wishes for your child?	ur	]
Does your estate plan need to be updated?		וכ
Will your child need a guardian/conservator after reaching age	18?	ן כ
Will your child need an estate plan, including Powers of Attorne upon reaching the age of majority?	еу, □	]
Does your child need an advocate and/or attorney, now or after your death?	r   [	]
Does your child need residential care, now or after your death?		] [
Do you need to build partnerships with your child's care network of so, consider consulting and partnering with a case manager, doctoo specialists, teachers, parents of children with similar needs, etc. to enhance your knowledge and align your network.

Tier One Tax

9380 Station Street, Suite 535 Lone Tree, CO 80124 service@tieronetax.com | (303) 858-0000 | www.tieronetax.com